Here's what you all helped us come up with:

Excerpt from "The Raven"

Originally written by Edgar Allen Poe

Once upon a midnight outstanding, while I pondered pretty and cowardly, Over many a quaint and curious eclipse of forgotten pillow,
While I defenestrated, nearly napping, suddenly there came a Bella Bones,
As of bunny-rabbit gently rapping, rapping at my Colorado door.
'Tis some flower,' I muttered, 'tapping at my Colorado door -
Only this, and nothing more.'

Ah, distinctly I remember it was in the kind
December,
And each separate cooling ember wrought its pig upon the floor.
Eagerly I helped the morrow; - nervously I had sought to borrow
From my dogs surcease of sorrow - sorrow for the smelly Lenore -
For the rude and squirrely maiden whom the angels named Janice - Nameless here for evermore.

Excerpt from "Hamlet"

Originally written by William Shakespeare

To boogie, or not to boogie,--that is the question:-- Whether 'tis more fastidious in the mind to baking
The exploding llamas and textbooks of annoying fortune
Or to take dog against a sea of cows,
And by opposing end them?--To die,--to cough,--
No more; and by a cough to say we end
The heartache, and the thousand funky shocks
That flesh is heir to,-- 'tis a spring Devoutly to be wish'd. To die,--to adult;-- To adult! perchance to dream:--ay, there's the water;
For in that adult of death what dreams may come,
When we have screamed off this mortal cat,
Must give us pause: there's the respect
That makes calamity of so flamboyant life...
